

Paddington Adventure Story

By: Miss Siggins English Hub

Paddington arrived in Madrid on a big red bus, he was so excited that he quickly ran down the stairs of the double decker and onto the footpath. He was feeling very hungry because he had eaten all his marmalade sandwiches on the long journey. He spotted a fancy tapas restaurant from the corner of his eye so he decided he would go and try some of their delicious food. He ordered some crunchy melba toast with red juicy tomatoes, tasty cucumber with feta cheese and scrumptious golden paella.

Paddington was feeling very full but he was excited to start exploring the beautiful city of Madrid.

Firstly, he decided to visit the world famous art museum called the Centro de Arte Reina that had a magnificent library with over 100,000 books.

He decided to look for a non-fiction book all about Spain that would help him on his adventures.

He spent some time admiring all the amazing artwork and he really liked looking at the colourful paintings that were hanging on the walls of the museum.

After a while Paddington thought it was time to set off on his next adventure. He quickly went to the world famous Santiago Bernabeu Stadium just in time to watch Real Madrid play a spectacular football match against the magnificent Manchester United team. He was thankful that he could watch this game because he'd been a Manchester United supporter for a long time. It was an exciting match and his favourite team won in the final minute. How fantastic it was!

The next day Paddington woke up and pulled back his curtains to see that the sun was beaming through the trees. It was a glorious day and it was scorching hot outside. He decided he would visit the beautiful Parque del Buen Retiro so he could sail along the calm and peaceful lake in a small wooden rowing boat and enjoy the sun shine.

Afterwards, Paddington was so hot he treated himself to a delicious chocolate ice cream.

"Oh dear", he said. Paddington's ice cream had quickly melted all over his smart blue coat because of the sweltering heat. He decided to treat himself to a cool, cold bottle of lemonade instead.

Paddington had an amazing time exploring Madrid but now he was ready for a new adventure. He got back on the big red bus going to the ferry port and wondered where he would like to go to next. What an amazing adventure he had in Madrid!

